RE: REACh Certification

Micron is fully aware of the REACh regulation and has a team in place to monitor all aspects of the regulation. Micron is also working directly with our suppliers to ensure all of our facilities meet all REACh requirements. From the product compliance standpoint, Micron monitors and tracks all material content information and shares this information with our customers as requested.

Micron's die, component, and module level products comply with REACh and do not contain substances published in the December 2014 candidate list on the ECHA website above the 0.1% wt/wt threshold.

If you have other questions on specific product, our REACh program, or other Micron product compliance efforts please contact your sales and marketing representative who will contact the appropriate factory personnel.
